Why not shoot the rain crow?
"THERE is plenty of room at the top." Sure. Most everybody enjoys being with the biggest crowd, though.
The smallest duty should not be neglected, for by so doing we may obscure some truth which we should have known.
A coy maiden recovered $3,000 damages from a New York man who had stolen 1,236 kisses from her. Serves him right.
It seems to us that the damage suit business is being overdone. As a rule the individual who files a damage suit is a robber or a coward.

A BEAUTIFUL form is better than a beautiful face, and high above both is beautiful behavior which gives us, by far, a higher degree of pleasure than stately or painting.
SEEMS like it would be a good plan to dress Allie Young up as a Jew, and send him to Kishineff and allow the Russians to have a hand in settling the Democratic imbroglio in Kentucky.

SOME investors in get-rich-quick concerns have just received a settlement and a final payment of 2 per cent. of their investments. No doubt they will charge the other 98 per cent. under the column of "valuable experience."

THE death of Richard Henry Stoddard has removed a noted and distinguished character from American literature. Unlike most all men of letters, he was without a college education. He was eminent in the variety of his literary expression, but it was chiefly as a poet that he won recognition and fame.

THE meeting of the National Educational Association at Boston, Mass., July 6-10, will be the largest and most noted gathering of teachers ever brought together on the planet. It is the literary chance of a lifetime for school workers who can afford to take the trip. All "monkey business" has been eliminated from the program and the meeting will no doubt mean a vast deal for the educational interests of America.

MEMORIAL May Day was fittingly observed over the entire country Saturday. Sweet flowers were laid with tender hands and loving hearts over the graves of those who have given their lives that the country might live. The missing face, the tottering step, the bent form all tell, but too plainly, of the ruthless flow of the stream of time and remind that, ere long, the last of the heroes of the sixties shall have spread his silent tent on fumes eternal camping ground.

THERE is now scarcely a doubt but that Tom White and Curtis Jett were the hired assassins of J. B. Murcum, at Jackson, in Breathitt county. The quicker these scoundrels are given an opportunity to look into the mysterious realms of the bright beyond, the better for Kentucky. Nor are they the only ones who should be punished. There are some county officials up there whose systems should be filled so full of lead that they would not hold their political opinions.

Ar a recent auction sale in Philadelphia, the manuscript of Edgar Allan Poe's poem, "The Bells," was sold for $2,100. During his life Poe was almost always in the most precarious financial conditions. His literary productions never realized him but a small income. His life is perhaps the saddest tragedy in the realms of literature, and is only one of the many cases of the tardy recognition of an author's merit during his life, with which the history of literature is replete.

THE Republicans never had a better opportunity to elect a Circuit

Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney in this judicial district. Those who have attended the sessions of court here during the last few years will certainly agree with us that a "house cleaning" is badly needed in the sixth district. Why not nominate R. W. Slack and M. L. Heaven, both men of unquestioned ability, who would command the esteem and confidence of the people of the entire district, and elect them? It can be done.

THEY haven't forgotten how to do things over in the Keystone state. The Republican State Convention, in addition to endorsing the administration of President Roosevelt and urging his nomination in 1904, gave the following unequivocal expression of Republicanism:
"We affirm our unswerving loyalty to the Republican principle of a protective tariff and deprecate any suggestion of a general revision at the present time of the tariff law enacted in 1897. We believe to be the course of wisdom to let well enough alone, and not to imperil business interests by any suggestions of present interference with revenue legislation. Permanence and stability of tariff rates are essential to continued business prosperity."

WE desire to call the attention of the town trustees to the repulsive and unsanitary condition of the side walks of Hartford. While we do not apprehend an immediate outbreak of Asiatic cholera, still we feel that the citizens of the town who pay taxes have a right to traverse the streets occasionally. Now gentlemen, it is not asking too much of you, let us implore you to "a humble and contrite spirit" to set aside one hour during the day and direct the marshal to clear the side walks of cattle and hogs so that the citizens may take a short walk for recreation.

IT never pays to do a dishonorable act to make or keep a friend. The person who is purchased in this way is never worth the price. It pays to be frank under all circumstances for this is the true spirit of honesty and courage. The man who assails you in your absence is an unconvinced criminal and conscious coward. If you have any fault to find of a person go to his face and tell him, not others, of your grievance. This is not only best as a matter of principle, but it is always the peaceable and honorable path to travel. If you skulk around and lie on your neighbors or associates who are the most perverted and debased moral leper of God's creation. Does this strike you?

POSITIVE information comes up from Oklahoma that John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of Abraham Lincoln, has committed suicide at Enid. He has "shuffled off this mortal coil" at various times since 1865, but in some mysterious way he has always come to life again. We do not wish to appear heartless, but we sincerely hope that he has been gathered to his fathers for the last time. He had grown old and the future held out little encouragement to him, and then there seems to be little choice between life and death in Oklahoma, and, perhaps, after all, it is best that Mr. Booth has again left us. It has been nearly thirty-eight years since Booth died the first time. Doesn't time fly?

COL. BELKNAP
Issues a Circular Letter Inviting Support for His Candidacy.
Col Morris B. Belknap has issued the following straight-forward circular letter announcing his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor:
Louisville, Ky., May 30, 1903.
Dear Sir:—I ask your favorable consideration and active support of my candidacy for the nomination for Governor of Kentucky. As a lifelong Republican there has been instilled into me the belief that salvation from the political ills we suffer from will only come through the Republican party, by adherence to those principles of free civil government, respect for constituted law, and patriotic administration of affairs. In these broader questions rather than the details of political affairs I have interested myself, and hence have not mixed up with any of the fractional struggles of the various sections.
This gives me a chance to make a bold, free race for the party, unhampered by personal animosities. My strength in my home county is conceded; also that with the independent vote.
I hope I may add your name to the list of my supporters. Should you come to the city, please do me the honor to call. Yours sincerely,
MORRIS B. BELKNAP.

A VISIT TO AN ARMY

(Original.)
When the Franco-Prussian war broke out, I was studying at a German university, or, rather, I had finished my course and was making pedestrian tours over the continent of Europe. One morning after the battle of Gravelotte I walked into the German lines, hoping to find among the officers some of my former fellow students, but if any of them were there I did not meet them. I was taken to Lieutenant Colonel Schiff, who was what the United States army would call the provost marshal, to whom I presented my credentials. I was traveling over from head to foot, then said something to Colonel Schiff in a language (not German) that I did not understand. I felt sure it referred to me, but if it did the colonel gave no indication of it. After the officer left the colonel invited me to be his guest during my stay in the camp.

"I presume," he said to me, "that you wish to see something of the army. I am going to visit several different corps today and will be happy to have you accompany me."
I assured him that I should be very thankful for the opportunity, and after furnishing me with a horse, accompanied by a small escort, we sallied forth. The colonel had his duties to perform and often left us to visit different headquarters, paying no attention to me except when I noticed a young officer of the party continually watching me. If I got out my glass to view a distant object, he craned his neck to see what I was looking at; if I took especial interest in a redoubt, he seemed equally interested in the fact; if I asked for information, he spurred his horse close enough to me to hear all that was said.

When we returned from the tour, I was dining by the colonel and when I retired was given a tent with an army cot in it in which to sleep. I was awakened in the night by the guard changing sentries, and after the relief had passed away, hearing some one weeping back and forth, I arose and looked out. There was a sentry pacing before my tent.

"Well," I said, surprised, "these Germans are not inclined to let people get away in the night. But I suppose it is army custom with regard to civilians." The next morning after breakfast I thanked the colonel for his hospitality and told him that I thought I would take my departure.
"Where do you go from here?" he asked.
"I shall go to Paris, then take a steamer for New York."

I knew nothing about military matters or I should not have thus boldly declared that after inspecting the German army I was going straight to the capital of France. The colonel looked at me strangely. Then a faint shadow of incredulity passed over his face.
"Better stay with us another day," he said. "I have invited a number of officers to dine with you."
Somehow I felt that the invitation was akin to an order. At any rate, I did not feel quite safe in declining. I spent the day at the colonel's headquarters and noticed that whenever I walked beyond the chain of sentinels whom he seemed kept a critical eye upon me, and once when I went some distance an officer came running after me, politely informing me that no one was allowed to leave the camp without the colonel's pass.

At dinner I was introduced to some fine fellows and enjoyed their society so well that I forgot the espionage to which I had been subjected. During the dinner the colonel was called away, and when he returned his manner toward me changed entirely. He was less deferential and less constrained. Indeed, for the first time his bearing toward me was natural.

"If you care to rise early," he said to me before I retired, "I will show you an interesting army ceremony. Then, if you choose, you may proceed with your tour."
"I shall be delighted to join you for the ceremony, and I really must proceed as soon as it is over," I replied. Notwithstanding the change in the colonel's bearing toward me I felt uneasy. There was a drawing down of the corners of his mouth when he used the word "ceremony" that I did not like. I awoke soon after going to sleep and looked out. There was no guard before my tent. I was puzzled. Finally I went to sleep and was awakened at dawn by the colonel's orderly.

Our party rode a short distance and stopped at a barn. A platoon of soldiers were standing at what we call "parade rest." Suddenly the barn door opened, and a man pale as death was led out under guard.
Great heavens! He was the very image of myself.
Here was the explanation of all that had passed. The man was a spy, and I had been mistaken for him.
"We caught him," said the colonel to me, "last night. Had he succeeded in slipping away you would have been in his place this morning, for we were sure you were he."

I did not want to witness the execution, but with the colonel's permission rode back to camp. He soon returned, and after he had given me breakfast I was permitted to depart.

The angel of death has visited our community and Miss Sarah A. Leach answered the call at half past one o'clock yesterday. She breathed her last breath and has gone to dwell with angels in heaven, as she left every evidence of a true Christian. She leaves a father, mother, 3 brothers, 3 sisters and a host of friends to mourn her loss. The funeral services will be conducted to-day at the Mt. Zion burying ground by Revs. C. I. Kelley and W. Dr. R. H. Hackett, a prominent merchant of Morgantown, Ky., was a sufferer from years from constipation and indigestion, and was prevailed upon, to try Dr. Carlstedt's German Liver Powder by one whom it had done great good. He gave it a single trial, when he began to feel better at once. Troubled with piles, Mr. Hackett was surprised to find himself cured of the most dreaded of bodily ailments. He is now well and does not use any medicine. If you are afflicted in this manner, give it a trial. It will cost you only 25 cents, and should it not prove as we say the druggist is authorized to refund your money.

A Card of Thanks.

To our many good friends who so generally remembered and kindly assisted us in the recent illness and death of our darling boy, George Thompson Taylor, we desire to extend our most heart-felt thanks. We are unable to fully express our appreciation, but we trust when opportunity presents itself, we may lighten the burden of some worthy friend when sorrow and grief darkens their homes, and then in part repay the debt of gratitude we owe.

Sunday School Convention.

Ohio County Sunday School Convention was held at Hartford, Ky., on Saturday May 30, 1903. Each Sunday school in the county was expected to send one or more delegates to this convention and preparations had been made for their entertainment, but, it is supposed, on account of the rain and lack of previous management only a few were present. The object of the convention was to instruct and enthuse the Sunday school teachers and workers as that they would be prepared to do able work in the future. Rev. I. C. Gebauer, acting under the direction of the State Sunday School Association and in accordance with previous announcement, was present and conducted the services. His lectures on "Lesson Preparation" and "Lesson Teaching," were very suggestive and instructive, and helpful to both teachers and pupils. Those who failed to hear him missed quite a treat, as he is an elegant speaker and an able instructor. Let the good work go on.

The following county officers were elected for the ensuing year: Prof. E. W. Patterson, Pres., D. M. Hocker, V. Pres., Miss Stella Thomas, Sec. and Treas.

This section was blessed with a fine rain to-day, which tobacco growers were very glad to see.

Resolutions.

Rough River Lodge No. 110, Knights of Pythias.

Whereas, The officers and members of Rough River Lodge No. 110, Knights of Pythias, have learned with profound sorrow the deep affliction which has befallen our worthy brother and member, A. C. Taylor, in the death of his little son, George Thompson, which occurred at Hartford, Ky., on June 1st, 1903; therefore be it,

Resolved, That this lodge extend to brother Taylor its deepest sympathy in this, his hour of sad affliction, and assure him that our hearts are bowed down in grief with him in the loss of his precious baby, and that we commend him to the Almighty God, who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minute book of this lodge and a copy be furnished the local papers for publication and that a copy be furnished to brother Taylor and his family.

Done by order of the lodge, this June 2nd, 1903.

Ohio County's First Cadet.

Mr. P. C. Miller was born in Cromwell, April 20, 1882, and spent his boyhood in performing the duties of the farmer boy on a farm three miles South of Beaver Dam, and attending the district school.

When his father was elected County Judge and moved to town, Cleburn entered Hartford College. At eighteen he passed the county examination successfully and taught in the common schools the three following years. He holds first-class certificates in Ohio, Muhlenberg and Davess counties. He received the degree of Bachelor of Pedagogy last year, and was graduated last week from Hartford College with the degree of Bachelor of Science. He will enter the Military Academy at West Point, June 15, 1903.

He will remain in the academy four years, after which he will receive a commission in the regular army. He is the first Ohio county boy to go to West Point, and the honor has certainly not come unmerited.

He is studious, energetic and ambitious, having always lived a life remarkably free from vice and excess. He is to be congratulated on securing the appointment and Ohio county is to be congratulated for securing such a young man to represent her in the great school of Military Arts.

All Humors

Are impure matters which the skin, liver, kidneys and other organs can not take care of without help, there is such an accumulation of them.

They litter the whole system. Pimples, boils, eczema and other eruptions, loss of appetite, that tired feeling, bilious turns, fits of indigestion, dull headaches and many other troubles are due to them.
